DETAILED ACTION

General status

1. This is a Final Action on the Merits. Claims 16 - 30 are pending in the case and are being examined.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

3. Claim 16 - 30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being incomplete for omitting essential elements, such omission amounting to a gap between the elements. See MPEP § 2172.01. The omitted element is an outer actuator layer.

Claim 16 lines 11 - 14 recites "said outer elastic activation layer being deformable in response to pressure , in order for the activation layer to behave in the manner recited in the claim 16, it is necessary to provide the actuator layer by which the pressure could be applied to the activation layer, so the material of the activation layer moves to the central region. In absence of the actuator layer the material of the activation layer will not behave in the manner claimed.

Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claim 26 would be allowable if rewritten to overcome the rejection(s) under 35 U.S.C. 112, 2nd paragraph, set forth in this Office action and to include all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments filed 06/20/2007 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

In the argument presented on 6/20/07, the Applicant has stated that the outer actuation layer has not been defined as an essential element. Applicant has also stated that depending upon the elasto-mechanical characteristic of the activation layer, the introduction of the force into the membrane system can be adjusted in the controlled manner.

According to the specification, page 6, lines 21+, the activation layer may be made of foam material, a silicon gel, a rubber like material, or fluid filled cushion. The Examiner is not aware of any of these material, can be adjusted in controlled manner to produce elasto-mechanical property that will allow them to deflect in a manner recited in the claim 16. For each of these materials, when a force is applied at a point, the material will deflect the most at that point, and rest of the area will have a relatively lesser deflection. Only when a rigid actuator layer, is provided, the force applied will be converted into pressure, and the combined effect will have greater thickness in the center region than the peripheral region.

Conclusion

6. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within

Art Unit: 2832

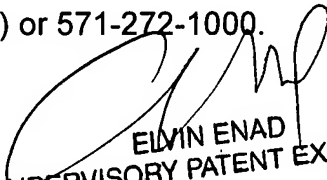

TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
